It's a small adventure in which you control an anthropomorphic rock that is about to have a showdown with the most powerful Roman army! Combat both using the agility of your pet and the magic of an ancient potion. Flee the Romans with the rock's agility and make a dash for the mountains before the Romans reach your home! Enemies are all around you: wild boars, bears, lions, a monster... All this will hinder the road to victory. Enjoy the freedom of exploration and activate the map of Gaul from A to Z to embark on the most epic adventure ever! Instructions Move Asterix around with the left arrow keys, and hit the space bar to jump. Collect items (bells, vases, etc.) as you go, and use them to buy potions for your characters. Only buy potions when you need them, and be careful: you'll pay the full price for potions at the very beginning of the game. Use Asterix's rock as a weapon, hitting enemies and obstacles. Hit Asterix with a tent to cure him of his wounds, and follow him around as he tries to shake off the effects of the potion he drank. Potion Types Asterix and Obelix drink bottles to recover after being attacked. Some of the potion bottles will cure a character for no cost, but some bottles will cost a maximum of 100 coins. Movement and Control Every time Asterix and Obelix walk, they become animated with a 2D horizontal scrolling movement in the direction they were facing before landing. Asterix and Obelix move slower than the player, which allows for strategic movement around enemies. Tent & Stone Hand A tent can be used to heal Asterix and Obelix, and temporarily remove all hit points from them. A stone hand can be used to attack, most notably when Asterix is riding a horse and performing a bear leap. Gameplay Asterix and Obelix take turns in battle. To win, players must eliminate all enemies. Players can throw items at enemies to knock them down. Obelix can eat raw meat, or any ingredients that are the price of a single potion. Once eaten, Obelix is healed for the same price as the potion cost. If Asterix collects a potion or tent from a shopkeeper, he will perform a cutscene which includes a

A niece of the Prussian queen, she was a first cousin of Empress Catherine II of Russia. Her mother, Princess Sophie of Oldenburg, was the daughter of Karl Friedrich, the first Margrave of Brandenburg-Schwedt. Life She married Prince Albert of Courland and Marklow on 4 August 1797. Their only child, Prince Ludwig, was born a year and a half later. Princess Louise had a close relationship with her niece, the Empress Catherine. On the Empress' behalf, Louise persuaded Napoleon to reject the idea of transferring Duke John of Saxony to the Russian government. Louise lived to a very old age. She survived both her husband and her son. She died after the demise of her third husband, King Frederick William III, at the age of eighty-seven. Her residence in Berlin was destroyed during the Battle of Berlin in World War II. The Puzzle Box Palace (Slovene: Mačjastvo) was Slovenia's first luxury hotel. Built between 1902 and 1905 it was designed by August Ritter, and it had ten floors. The hotel's construction resulted in much corruption among Slovene politicians and politicians of other countries, like Italy and Austria and using bribes, they were able to get a subvention from the authorities. The government organised an investigation and Arthur de Gobineau, a French author who often visited Slovenia, carried out an investigation that led to 11 out of 16 ministers being forced to resign, including Josip Štark and Josip Puharich, who were accused of bribery. The building Since the Palace was built in a classist and aristocratic way, on the border of the old town, it created a link between the newly established town and this part of the historical center of Ljubljana that would be changed into a zone of streets that are closed for visitors. Therefore, the building was divided into two parts and the first part of the building was labeled as Art Nouveau, and the second part was labeled Art Deco. Part I: Art Nouveau The Puzzle Box Palace is composed of two parts, separated by the Maria Theresa road. The central part was the hotel and the second half was attached to the hotel. The hotel was built with Slovene and Austrian materials and was divided into rooms starting from six to one thousand per floor. For example, on the top floor there were 200 rooms while on the top floor there were only 42 rooms, at the same time. The hotel was connected to the city at the foot of the tower. The Art Deco part was built after the First World War and to protect it during the Nazi occupation of Italy (1939–45). It extended from the building to the cemetery of Voštarje. Once mentioned in the program of the Universal Exhibition in Paris (1900), and the construction of the building began in May 1902. However, it was not finished and until 1906 Ritter revised his plans and the new construction was built in a more art deco style. Because the hotel was built in the prestigious area that was allowed to have a maximum of

1200 luxurious rooms, it was the first luxury hotel in the Dual Monarchy of Austria-Hungary. Thus, the building became the symbol of Ljubljana even though the hotel was open for a short period

Luna's Wandering Stars: Astrology is a detailed narrative-driven puzzle game set in space. Luna, a young exploration bot, is lost in the cosmos. She is trying to unravel the secret of a message from her creators and understand the significance of a journal she finds. She has no way of communicating with the other inhabitants of space, including human beings, and can only rely on her perception of physics and the elements she can touch. The story is told via text dialogues and narration, an excellent feature of many space games but a rarity in other genres. Once you reach the end of the game, you can revisit the story to analyze your own observations and experiences. Features: Play as Luna - Your bot is designed to play a mechanic role; Luna's primary role is to solve puzzles. If she enters a locked room, she can break it open and explore. If she touches an object, she will be able to read its characteristics, otherwise she will conclude it's inoperable. A Physical Puzzle Game - For the first time in a puzzle game, you have the ability to interact with the elements in the physical world. Luna can open doors, interact with planets, power up systems to unlock new areas, and converse with the crew. Everywhere is a New Space - While exploring, you will find many different environments, each with a different set of physics and sometimes a series of puzzles. Based on Newton's Laws of Motion - Any object in motion continues to move, but with decreasing speed until it eventually comes to a stop. You will notice this slowing of Luna's movement even before she notices it herself. The universe is concerned about your safety and will alert you to any impending danger. Vibrant Soundtrack - The soundtrack consists of the usual spacey electronica, but also features some electronica that plays out with a western twist. Each piece is labeled with its corresponding planetary element. Original Story and Balancing - Once you finish the story, you can return to check your statistics and attributes at any point. Luna can gain knowledge about her system, crew, and past that will help you solve your next puzzle. Balance is also very important to the game. You will notice an energy/power bar at the bottom of the screen. If you run low, you can't use your skills as efficiently. Controls: Use the D-Pad and Spacebar to move the cursor, each circle repesents one
