Q: Android Studio custom font size varies among different devices I have an app with custom font, and I use the following properties to specify the desired font fontPath = Fonts.getFontPath("samplefont.ttf"); fontWeight = FontWeight.NORMAL; and when I try to set TextSize via this method: private void setTextSize(TextView textView, int size) { float fontSize = TypedValue.applyDimension(TypedValue.COMPLEX_UNIT_SP, size, context.getResources().getDisplayMetrics()); textView.setTextSize(TypedValue.COMPLEX_UNIT_SP, fontSize); } it looks all good on my Android, and testing device, but the same code looks vastly different on my large tablet. How can I determine whether the difference is due to a difference in device, or a difference in Android version? A: Font sizes on the Android system are device dependent - that is what it means when you read a scaling constant. There are a few articles on the subject that you can read here and here. In short, you need to properly understand the display size of the device on which you are running your application.
